Dick Fleming Communications

Dick Fleming Communications was established in 1986. The company connects to all the major networks. As the cellular phone has developed it has become more than a means of verbal communication we have highly trained and knowledgeable staff who understand the full potential of the equipment. The company can advise customers on data transfer, remote email, high speed data and Bluetooth or infrared connectivity. We are authorised Blackberry agents and have an IT department that can programme, install and commission products from satellite email to Bluetooth laptops. To make sure the customer is on the right airtime package we regularly monitor new tariffs against customer requirements. For an unbiased appraisal of your communication costs or requirements, please contact us.
